MIW Filters, Japanese-developed air and oil filters for nearly 100 makes

The 2027 catalogue of SGR Group's filtration brand covers motorcycles, scooters, quads and microcars, with high-performance air filters, power filters and cross-references to OEM part numbers.

MIW Filters is SGR Group's air and oil filter brand. The filters are developed in Shizuoka, Japan. The 2027 catalogue, 292 pages long, lists applications for nearly 100 makes of motorcycles, scooters, quads and microcars, including Aprilia, BMW, Ducati, Honda, Kawasaki, KTM, Piaggio, Suzuki, Triumph and Yamaha.

For its oil filters MIW uses resin-impregnated micropore paper with cotton fibres of different thicknesses: thicker towards the outside, to catch larger metal particles, thinner towards the inside, for the smallest ones. MIW calls this multi-stage filtration, and according to the catalogue the filters also include an oil pressure stabiliser system.

Alongside oil filters, the range includes standard and high-performance air filters, universal power filters in ten sizes and in a high-performance version, and oil filter wrenches. For every application the catalogue gives the MIW code and the SGR reference for ordering, and the final tables link OEM part numbers to MIW codes.

MIW Filters sponsors the LCR Honda team in MotoGP, together with EnergySafe Battery, the Group's battery brand.
